

Bonepossibly humanfound inside shark in FL

Web-posted: 11/14/08 - 11:30 a.m.

POMPANO BEACH Fla (AP) - A fishing boat charter captain made a gruesome discovery while gutting a 9-foot long shark: a bone inside the predator's belly

Bone Found Inside 400-Pound Shark

Deputies Say Bone Not Human

POSTED: 11:47 am EST November 14, 2008

UPDATED: 11:50 am EST November 14, 2008

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. -- A fishing boat charter captain discovered a bone inside a 9-foot long shark.

Broward County sheriff's deputies said the captain thought the bone was human, so he called police Friday morning. The 6-inch bone turned out not to be human, however.

Captain Mark Quartiano -- who is known locally as "Mark the Shark" -- was gutting the fish Friday morning; a client had caught the 400-pound male bull shark the day before off Miami Beach.

The Miami Herald

Florida AP

Pompano: Mystery of bone found in shark

solved

By Sallie James | SunSentinel.com

11:46 AM EST, November 14, 2008

POMPANO BEACH - A fishing boat captain gutting a 400-pound male bull shark this morning found a bone inside the creature's stomach that was so large he figured it might be human.

The Broward Medical Examiner's Office was called in to investigate, and the media interest in the story was so high that the Sheriff's Office had to reschedule a news conference planned for this morning in Deerfield Beach on a new crime-fighting program.

It didn't take long for experts to render their verdict: Not human, according to sheriff's spokesman Mike Jachles.

The Sheriff's Office says Capt. Mark Quartiano was cleaning the 9-foot-long shark at about 8:30 a.m. in the 2500 block of Southeast 11 Street when he discovered the bone and called police.

Related links

-  Photos: Sharks in Florida Photos

The Sheriff's Office Crime Scene unit responded to the scene, and took the bone to the Medical Examiner.

The shark was caught about a quarter-mile offshore near Government Cut in Miami-Dade County on Thursday afternoon by one of the charter boat's clients from New Jersey.

Investigators are still trying to determine where the bone could have come from.

Bone, Possibly Human, Found Inside Shark

Friday, November 14, 2008 – updated: 11:49 am EST November 14, 2008

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. -- A fishing boat charter captain made a gruesome discovery while gutting a 9-foot long shark: a bone inside the predator's belly.

Broward County Sheriff's deputies said the captain thought the bone was human and called police.

Captain Mark Quartiano -- who is known locally as "Mark the Shark" -- was gutting the fish Friday morning; a client had caught the 400-pound male bull shark the day before off Miami Beach.

Quartiano said the bone, and some small fish, spilled out of the shark. The bone "still had skin on it," the captain told a local TV station.

Crime scene techs responded and took the bone to the county medical examiner's office, where doctors will determine if the bone is, actually, human.

Bone found inside shark in FL

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) -- A fishing boat charter captain discovered a bone inside a 9-foot long shark.

Broward County Sheriff's deputies said the captain thought the bone was human and called police Friday morning. The six-inch bone turned out not to be human, however.

Captain Mark Quartiano -- who is known locally as "Mark the Shark" -- was gutting the fish Friday morning; a client had caught the 400-pound male bull shark the day before off Miami Beach.

(Copyright 2008 by The Associated Press. All Rights Reserved.)